AN immersive ghost story is coming to a Harlow shopping centre as part of a huge Halloween extravaganza.

Freeman Productions and Contexture Theatre will bring the UK's first touring immersive experience, The Ghost of Chesterton House, to The Harvey Centre later this month.

Organised by Harlow Playhouse, the pop-up venue will see 14 brave guests meet a woman seeking the company of a lodger to help exorcise the ghostly vision that haunts her.

The tragic story unfolds in an authentic Victorian dining room and will take place on Friday, October 27, and Saturday, October 28, with performances at 7pm, 8pm and 9pm on both days.

After the performance guests will be invited to Chesterton House's Ghost Lounge.

The Harvey Centre will also undergo a spooky transformation ahead of Halloween, with a 3D house and garden positioned on the ground floor of the centre for shoppers brave enough to venture inside.

There will also be a family games area outside the Burger Priest on the top floor, with the likes of Hoop the Watches Hat, Catch the Ghost, Photo Peep Throughs and Crazy Mirrors.

The attractions will be in place from October 19 until November 4.

On Saturday, October 27 between 11am and 4pm, shoppers are invited to a swashbuckling day of fun with a haunted pirate ship with treasure chest decorating workshops, sea shanty lingo classes, a treasure hunt and face-painting.

The team of make-up artists will also be transforming guests into pirates or giving them a glitzy make-over with glitter tattoos and henna.

Centre manager at The Harvey Centre, Bryan Young, said: "Halloween is now a huge event in the UK and a celebration our shoppers really love.

"Every year we want to push the bounda-

Police jobs pledge over collaboration

ESSEX Police have pledged no jobs will be lost under a plan to pool procurement resources between six other police forces in a bid to reduce costs.

The 7 Force Collaboration Programme, made up of Bedfordshire, Cambridgeshire, Hertfordshire, Norfolk, Suffolk Essex and Kent, say they are seeking to enhance frontline services by promoting efficiencies through a joint procurement system.

Essex has seen an overall crime increase by 11.2 per cent during 2017/18 compared to 15.3 per cent (to December 2017) nationally and an 8.7 per cent increase in 2016/17.

These ongoing pressures have grown as funding in real terms has continued to be restrained.

Due to a number of challenges, including a historically low precept and the current funding formula, Essex Police remain the tightest-funded police force in the country with a budget of £277.4 million for 2018-19, financed about two-thirds by Government grant and one-third by council tax.

An extra £7.5 million is being raised through a council tax increase, to fund an additional 150 front line officers in Essex.

Members of the Essex Police, Fire and Crime Panel have approved Police, Fire and Crime Commissioner Roger Hirst's proposal, that will result in the recruitment of 150 more officers primarily for local policing teams, bringing the total number of officers to at least 3,000 by 2019.

Three-quarters of all the additional money raised from the increased police precept from council tax is being invested in local policing. The increase follows a survey in which about 65 per cent of people said they would be prepared to see council tax increased by more than two per cent. Significant work has been undertaken to analyse the contracts that exist between the seven forces.

Roger Hirst said: "We are not looking to downsize in any way; this is about having the resources to invest in the front line and make sure Essex Police service is as good as it can be."

A spokesman for Essex Police said: "The proposal does not involve a reduction in staffing numbers."

Charge after teenager stabbed in the stomach

A MAN has appeared in court after a 16-year-old boy was stabbed in the stomach in Harlow.

Thokozani Shiri, 20, of Torkildsen Way, was arrested at the scene in Harlow Town Park on suspicion of attempted murder.

However he appeared at Chelmsford Magistrates' Court on Wednesday charged with causing grievous bodily harm and threatening a person with an offensive weapon in a public place.

Officers were called to Harlow Town Park just before 6.30pm on Monday after reports of an argument between two people.

It is believed that the stabbing happened in the park near to the Greyhound Pub in School Lane, leaving the 16-year-old male victim with injuries to his stomach.

He was taken to a hospital in London in a serious condition, where he then underwent surgery.

Witnesses spotted emergency services near to Harlow Town Park shortly before 7pm. One stated he saw police and an ambulance as he walked along the road and heard "shouting".

Another claimed that members of the public helped a young boy.

An anonymous witness said on Monday evening: "My son walked home along the road and heard shouting and saw police and ambulance. I hope nobody is badly hurt."

One resident, who did not want to be named, said: "For the last few years, it has been pleasant. It is a walkway through to town, but I don't walk my dog at night anyway. Seventeen years

I've lived here and it has had the odd break-in. It's a bit remote here.

"I thought the police would have come and knocked on our doors last night to ask if anything happened, but they didn't."

"My grandson is coming up to 12 years old now and starting to go out. It is a worry because anyone could pull a knife these days."

The park, which is one of the largest urban parks in the country, covers over 160 acres of green space.

An air ambulance is said to have landed near the park, on School Lane, in response to the incident.

One man, whose house backs on to Harlow Town Park, said: "I pulled up from work last night at about 6.20pm and saw police and an ambulance parked up."

"Police had shut the road off and we all had to leave our cars at the top of the road. I saw an air ambulance land, but I don't know if it took anyone away."

"It's usually quiet around here - there's been a few incidents, but that's by the train station more than here."

And another witness, who did not want to be named, said: "My husband was bringing me back from yoga when we arrived at around 7pm the road was

IN BRIEF

Denial over minority pupil referrals

ESSEX County Council has denied there is an issue with the number of youngsters who have English as another language (EAL) who are from black and minority ethnic (BME) backgrounds being sent to pupil referral units (PRU).

Even though the total number of pupils being sent to PRUs has fallen from 684 in 2017 to 630 in 2018, the number of EAL students being referred have gone up from 21 to 38 and the number of BME being sent to PRUs has increased from 37 to 51 in the same time.

A PRU is a maintained school that is set up specifically to deal with pupils that otherwise would not receive a suitable education for any reason, including illness or exclusion.

They often accommodate the most troubled and disruptive of pupils.

But they also provide education for children with physical and mental health issues that prevent them attending mainstream school.

Teachers have previously blamed cuts in staff on the huge rise in the number of exclusions in Essex.

All PRU places receive base funding of £10,000 per place. A variable top up fee is then paid for each place. This varies according to the centre the pupil attends and any special needs the young person may have. The average cost for a week is £96 and for one month is £375.

An ECC spokesman said: "We do not believe that there are any issues of discrimination around pupils attending our PRU. However we will monitor figures."

Police tape at the scene of a stabbing in Harlow Town Park on Tuesday shut off we had to leave our cars and walk down the road.

"I saw lots of policemen running after two boys down the road.

"We went to collect our car at about 9pm, but one end of the road was still taped off."

Essex Police believe that a number of young people were at the scene at the time of the incident and officers would like to speak to them.

They also claim that there may be some images of the incident or information being shared on social media app Snapchat.

Detective Constable Anne-Marie Hardingham said: "Officers are in the area conducting house-to-house enquiries and taking witness statements from residents.

"We believe an argument led to the victim being stabbed although we are currently unclear as to the full circumstances surrounding the incident.

"We think there were a number of teenagers who saw what happened and we really want to speak to them.

"We are aware that there may be some images of the incident or information being shared on Snapchat and we would encourage this to be sent to us.

"If you don't feel comfortable talking to police, please contact Crimestoppers anonymously."

Anyone with information is asked to contact Harlow CID on 101 or Crimestoppers 100 per cent anonymously on 0800

Mum's fight as disabled son offered care 50 miles away

@journalpage

A NAZEING mum is fighting for her severely disabled son to attend a local residential centre after social services failed to put something in place for him once he finished college.

Jeanie Smith says her son Christopher, who needs one-to-one care, has "slipped through the net" of social services after it was left until the last minute to arrange a place for him at the Harlow Wellbeing Hub (ECL) five days a week.

Despite then being offered assisted living around 25 minutes away in Chigwell, this too fell through, leaving it possible that Christopher could now be housed up to 70 miles away in Clacton.

Christopher, who is now 20, was born with cerebral palsy, learning difficulties and hemiplegia - a paralysis of one side of the body.

Jeanie was carrying identical twin boys when she suffered complications during a routine drain-off.

She said: "I had a scan when I think it was at 17 weeks and then they left me right up until 27 weeks.

"By that time I was huge. They said to me 'you need to go up to University College London for a routine drain-off' - which is the fluid the babies are in.

"They drained off the fluid and sadly it went all wrong.

"Daniel lived for 20 minutes and Christopher - he was starved of oxygen which means he had what is called a hemiplegia."

Identical twin Daniel died of twin-to-twin transfusion.

The placenta is meant to split between both babies - yet Daniel had too much of everything.

The whole left side of Christopher's body was left very weak compared to his right.

"He's not aware of any dangers outside or anything like that," continued Jeanie.

"He basically needs to have someone with him all the time - he can't be left, he needs someone with him.

"He won't make conversation with anyone - he needs one-to-one care basically."

Christopher was due for a place at Harlow Wellbeing Hub once he had finished at Harlow Fields School and College.

However, his mum said this place was not arranged, although he now attends two days a week.

Jeanie continued: "What should have happened when he left school in July for the six-week holidays, is they should have actually got something in place for him to join The Hub in Harlow.

"Social services did not sort that out and it wasn't The Hub's fault - The Hub hadn't done anything wrong.

"He was supposed to have gone there five days a week but because they'd left it right until the end of

Christopher was expected to attend the Harlow Wellbeing Hub five days a week
MARTINE XERRI

CHRISTOPHER, 20, 'SLIPPED THROUGH THE NET'

August to sort it out there wasn't any places and not enough staff at The Hub."

Christopher was subsequently offered assisted accommodation in Chigwell and was due to visit in the first week of August, but Jeanie said this was cancelled.

The shared living, which would have provided Christopher the support he needs and his own shower room around 25 minutes from home, unexpectedly fell through.

Jeanie, who is a volunteer at Home-Starts Herts, has therefore been unable to carry out her family group on a Monday and Wednesday as a result of having to stay home to look after Christopher.

Thankfully she said Home-Starts Herts has been "really supportive" of her, yet she feels if she had a full-time job she may have lost it.

As a result, social services are said to be now looking at assisted living centres 48 miles away in Colchester and almost 70 miles away in Clacton.

While it would give Christopher support and independence, it also means mum Jeanie isn't close by should he need her.

Jeanie continued: "I don't really want to be that far away from my son if anything happens to him because, being disabled, he is very vulnerable.

"He does have seizures as well. I just want him to be close to me and go to a place where he is going to be happy.

"Clacton would be up to two hours depending on traffic and I know Colchester is closer but it is still going to take me over an hour.

"You know your child eventually will leave home and that's the same with Christopher. I want him to be happy, I just want him to be safe and for me to visit him.

"If he's in Chigwell I can probably visit him once a week whereas if he is in Clacton and Colchester I can't do it every week.

"For him to be in a happy environment is all I ask.

"He has slipped through their [Essex County Council's] net and it should have been picked up as soon as he finished school in July."

Essex County Council has been approached for comment.

£7.5m health centre set to open next week

FACILITY WILL SERVE 20,000 PEOPLE

@journopage

A MULTI-MILLION pound health centre is set to open the doors of its new and expanded surgery next week.

The new Lister House Health Centre on Abercrombie Way in Harlow has undergone a £7.5 million redevelopment and has tripled its capacity.

Designed by CAMM Architects, the state-of-the-art-centre will offer dental, pharmacy, GP and other NHS services to more than 20,000 patients across Essex.

The redevelopment, which received support from Lloyds Bank Commercial Banking, is also expected to create new jobs for healthcare professionals in the region.

Harlow Health Centres Trust, in partnership with Harlow Council, undertook a land swap - enabling a purpose-built health centre to be developed on Abercrombie Way.

The Trust approached Lloyds Bank for a funding package of £5.7 million, which has gone towards the project to build the new Lister House.

Lister House is one of seven health centres owned by Harlow Health Centre Trust - including Addison House, Florence Nightingale Health Centre, Nuffield House, Sydenham House, Keats House and Osler House.

The sites are leased out by the Trust to dentists, pharmacists, GPs and other NHS services.

The organisation is a not-for-profit registered charity and donates surplus profits towards health initiatives including medical research, equipment and education and training of healthcare professionals.

Trust chairman Derek Fenny said: "With the rapidly changing and demanding needs in local health facilities, Harlow Health Centre Trust have responded by replacing and enhancing the existing health centre.

"The new building is now modern and up-to-date. It will offer care to existing and new patients in this area of Harlow.

"The building was designed with the wellbeing of patients and staff in mind. It's an incredibly calming space that's spacious with lots of natural light."

He added: "The team at Lloyds Bank were of invaluable support throughout the whole redevelopment and we're already in discussions about future plans.

"They have a really good understanding of the healthcare sector which helped us to navigate any challenges we might have faced with ease."

Andrew Morgan, relationship director at Lloyds Bank Commercial Banking, added: "Harlow Health Centre Trust is one-of-a-kind and has donated £1.5 million in grants and funding for health initiatives across Essex and Hertfordshire.

"The new Lister House building looks incredible and is a real boost for the area, both in terms of increased healthcare services and new jobs.

"We're committed to helping Britain prosper by supporting healthcare organisations like Harlow Health Centre Trust which is why we've pledged to increase our lending to SME and mid-sized businesses by £2 billion this year."

The health centre will be officially opened by MP Robert Halfon on Friday, October 19.

McDonald's £1.5m revamp celebrated

By CHARLOTTE PAGE

HARLOW'S McDonald's celebrated its £1.5 million refurbishment with an opening ceremony.

The restaurant, at The Oaks Retail Park, was officially reopened on Saturday (October 6) by MP Robert Halfon.

And despite the restaurant experiencing some problems with the power supply, it is proving popular with customers.

Franchisee Tony Fagg said: "The restaurant at The Oaks Retail Park has unfortunately been experiencing some issues with the power supply due to ongoing supplier issues.

"We sincerely apologise for any inconvenience caused to our customers during this time and are working hard to rectify the situation as quickly as possible so we can get back to what we do best, which is serve people tasty food. Whilst we continue to work with our suppliers on this, please do feel free to visit us at the restaurants at Broadwalk, Staple Tye and Hastingwood, which remain open as normal."

The refurbishment has seen the dining area expanded, with now almost double the number of seats as before by making use of the former Carphone Warehouse site.

Other changes made to the restaurant include self-service kiosks, where nutritional information can be easily accessed, as well as table service.

This has enabled crew members more opportunities to interact with customers.

"We were delighted to welcome Rob Halfon MP to officially open the new-look restaurant at The Oaks," said Mr Fagg.

"We're all really pleased with our new look restaurant and the fantastic response we've had so far from customers and staff alike to the new features.

"These changes are designed to make our customers' experience as positive and welcoming as possible.

"And we've already had a brilliant reaction from our loyal customers."

Harlow MP Robert Halfon said: "I am delighted that McDonald's and their local manager, Tony Fagg, are investing so much in our town.

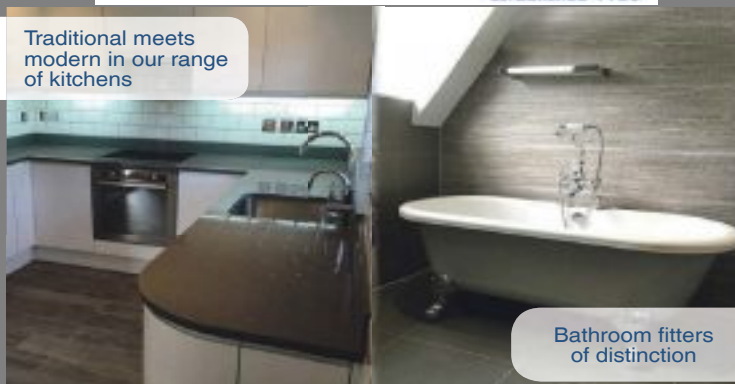

"Their brand-new restaurant is state-of-the-art and will bring jobs and apprenticeships to our town.

"Just as importantly, they are also a brilliant employer and it is great to see them giving equal opportunities to people with significant difficulties."

STATS RAISED CARE QUESTIONS

By JAMES GREGORY AND CHARLOTTE PAGE

newsdesk@hertsexnews.co.uk

PRINCESS Alexandra Hospital says it will continue to work with its partners to understand and address the reasons why mortality rates are higher than expected.

Recent statistics raised questions about patient care after it was revealed that the hospital had 195 more deaths than expected last year.

The hospital trust in Harlow saw 1,626 patient deaths in 2017/18, 14 per cent higher than the expected 1,431.

The findings were according to the latest Summary Hospital-level Mortality Indicator (SHMI) published by the NHS on September 20, which records deaths associated with hospitals.

The report looked at the number of people who died either while in hospital or within 30 days of being discharged across 131 trusts in England between April 2017 and March 2018, comparing those figures to the number expected to die given the characteristics of patients treated there.

PAH is one of just 13 trusts in the country with a 'higher than expected' SHMI banding. However the figures do not immediately indicate a bad performance or quality of care.

Instead, they are viewed as a 'smoke alarm' that requires further investigation.

In 2017/18, there were approximately nine million discharges, from which 299,000 deaths were recorded for the 131 hospital trusts covered.

Princess Alexandra Hospital says it will continue to work with its partners to drive mortality rate back to what is expected and improve the care and support offered to patients across the board.

Dr Foster, with whom PAH intend to work, is an independent company equipping health care organisations to turn data insights into decisions that can improve the quality and value of health care provision.

A spokeswoman for PAH said: "The Dr Foster reporting on mortality shows a statistically higher than expected mortality rate for PAH.

"We continue to work closely with them and internally to understand the reasons for this and the work needed to drive our mortality rate back to that expected for the Trust.

"We will continue our work internally and with our partners in primary and social care to improve the care and support for our patients across the whole health care system."

Essex County Councillors revealed last month that plans for a new hospital in the town had been identified as one of schemes to be given the go ahead from central government.

An area in Harlow close to the M11 and another where thousands of homes are being developed in the Gilston Park have been revealed as two sites being considered for a new hospital for the town.

A third option would see the existing Princess Alexandra Hospital buildings in the centre of the town replaced with a brand new complex.

The hospital was taken out of special measures earlier this year and it now 'requires improvement'.

Residents angry at loud noise from music festival at Arena

The organisers have apologised, saying they had no idea the sound would travel so far
MARTINE XERRI

@journopage

A GARAGE festival at The Harlow Arena has been branded "outrageously loud" by residents who were forced to shut their doors and windows.

The one-day event organised by ADS Events and Promotions was the first UKG festival and saw the likes of DJ Luck & MC Neat and Artful Dodger take to the stage.

However locals around a mile away in Fold Croft said that despite their efforts to escape the noise the music grew louder and louder.

Resident Diane Coyle first became aware of the festival when she took her dogs out for a walk at around 10am in Oak Wood - near to Princess Alexandra Hospital.

COMPLAINTS FOLLOW GARAGE EVENT AT FOOTBALL GROUND

HARLOW COUNCIL STATEMENT

"THE Football Club has held a premises licence for many years which allows playing of music indoors and outdoors. However, the club has not had an event like this before.

"We encourage licensees and event organisers always to approach us and give us the opportunity to comment on proposals for any large scale public events. This helps to avoid complaints and concerns of this nature being raised and ensures the safety of those attending as well as minimising any nuisance to the surrounding areas.

"We will be contacting the football club to talk about any proposals for more events like this to ensure that any concerns are considered and that any events are planned appropriately working with the council and the emergency services."

She said she could hear someone saying "testing, testing" and at first thought it might be a have been a fete, although soon discovered from a neighbour that it was a garage event at Harlow Town FC's ground.

In an attempt to escape the noise she took her dogs along the Burnt Mill River Stort, but said the noise followed her.

She said: "The only way I can describe our day was horrendous. You couldn't get away from it. We closed our doors and windows even though it was nice outside but could still hear it.

"We couldn't sit in the garden to make the best of this good weather it was so deafening. Other than get in your car and drive a distance away you would not get away from it. By the afternoon it was torture."

Helen Finn, 63, and her husband Dave, 70, added they had to turn the volume of both the radio and TV up in hope of drowning out the sound.

Mrs Finn said: "I've lived in Fold Croft nearly 40 years and I know Harlow Football Club hasn't been in its current place for all that time, but I've never experienced the noise we had to put up with that day.

"When I was trying to drown it out in my house I had the radio and the telly on full volume just to block out the background of it."

A spokesman for ADS Events, Steve Keil, has since apologised for the noise, saying that he had no idea the sound would travel that far. With another event planned at Christmas, he said he will use this as a learning curve for the future.

WHAT THE FOOTBALL CLUB SAYS

GENERAL manager of Harlow Town Football Club Ltd Tim Sewell said: "As a venue we worked very closely with ADS Events in the run up to and the delivery of this festival; with this being the first outdoor music event of this magnitude which we have hosted in our 12 years at this site, we have learned many lessons regarding the infrastructure set up for users of the site.

"Since the event we have held meetings with the local council, firstly to fully debrief the details within the event management plans for this event and to discuss a closer working relationship ahead of future events to ensure that disruption is kept to acceptable levels.

"We sincerely apologise to our neighbours for any upset and disruption caused by this event.

"Rather than wishing for this and any future events to alienate ourselves we do wish to continue to reinforce our place within the community with everything that we do on site.

"Of course, first and foremost we are a football club and are home to some 22 teams ranging from our Mini Hawks right through to our senior teams.

"These teams, their families and supporters are all in or around the site every week and as mentioned we wish to continue to build our place within the community which we serve.

"There is a genuine desire to provide future entertainment through our site, which offers a perfect venue for such events, and of course there is an opportunity to embrace all music genres to suit the varying demographics within the town that we have been a part of since 1879.

"The noise travel and amplification off our building and those around us for this first event has been hugely regrettable and the lessons learned from this event will very much be in our minds going forward."

Working to develop a clear set of business cases for new hospital

LETTERS

IT has been widely reported that Princess Alexandra Hospital NHS Trust is considering two greenfield sites as potential options for the development of a new hospital.

Understandable concerns from local residents about the impact of these on patient travel time and access have also been well articulated in the local media in recent weeks.

The trust board is considering three options for the redevelopment of the hospital; two greenfield sites and the redevelopment of the current site. One of the two greenfield sites is located to the north of Harlow (Gilston Village) and the other to the north-east of Harlow (junction 7A of the M11 motorway).

We are working hard to develop a very clear set of business cases for the new hospital and are continuing to make excellent progress with the work required.

We are in a very clear assurance process with NHS England for the capital funding required, and we are in regular contact with the relevant people and meeting with them regularly.

We also continue to have the full support of all our local MPs and district authorities for which we are very grateful.

We are a long way further ahead in the approval process than we have ever been.

A new hospital is rapidly becoming a reality.

We have been working closely with County Council and District Council colleagues as well as our health and care partners, and are also very grateful for their support and assistance.

This includes close liaison with regard to council development plans and with Essex County Council colleagues to determine the impact that a new hospital would have on traffic flow and congestion.

In parallel, we have been working with health planners and master planners to complete a thorough and detailed analysis of the future demand for hospital services and the detailed requirement for hospital space as a result.

They are also supporting us in undertaking a detailed analysis of the cost, the potential phasing and the ability to redevelop the site whilst maintaining services to all of our patients.

These are all very technical exercises and take time to do fully and properly so that fully informed decisions can be made by the Trust Board.

One of the next key decisions that we need to make is about the preferred site for the new hospital.

The choice of site is obviously a very significant and very important decision for the trust, for everyone employed by the trust and most importantly for all of the local residents who either currently use or may use our services in the future.

All members of the trust board are acutely aware of the importance of the decision and the imperative that we have all of the right information that we need to make a fully informed decision.

We will make a decision as a trust board against agreed criteria (agreed with health and local authority partners and colleagues).

We were planning on undertaking this in a two-stage process; deciding on the preferred greenfield site first and then comparing this with the current site option in March 2019.

Given the complexity of the issues surrounding the site selection and further detailed traffic modelling required, we are moving from this two-stage evaluation process to a single valuation process on March 7 2019.

This will be an evaluation of all three potential sites at the same time to determine the trust's preferred option.

It is important to note, that this change will not delay our planned time frame of making a final preferred site option by March 2019. It will therefore not delay our capital assurance process with NHS England.

We are still on track to meet their regional team with the relevant documentation, including a pre-consultation business case and a revised Strategic Outline Case in the spring.

We are currently developing a detailed public engagement plan and are liaising with our district council colleagues for advice on how to ensure that we can access and engage with all members of the local communities as effectively as possible.

This will help us to inform our decision-making on the preferred site.

Thanks for reading this and I hope that it goes some way to allaying the concerns raised about the decision-making process for the preferred new hospital site.

I also hope that it helps to explain the timing and the process for this decision.

I and my trust board colleagues very much look forward to talking further with you over forthcoming months as our plans continue to develop and as we continue to strive to provide the world-class hospital facility that you all deserve.

At risk of becoming a country called Europe

MR Andrew Wallace in his letter last week, is a typical scare story without any facts to back up his fantasy.

Does he really wish to remain in a union committed to becoming a country called Europe, where he is ruled by an un-elected dictatorship like the old Soviet Union?

And where now youth unemployment is of an unbearable level, there is social unrest, economic problems in Greece and Spain, Italy on the brink of financial disaster, and immigration totally out of control?

If we were to remain in this ill-conceived construct, we would be forced to share all this grief, and the restriction and control of everything in our daily lives.

The evidence that I have witnessed in Harlow, shows that partly due to the bullying tactics of the EU, more people than ever now wish to leave.

The essential requirement in leaving the EU, is that we once more return to being a free democratic nation, with the ability to make our own Laws, control our borders, and trade freely with the rest of the world.

Sadly Robert Halfon has not made any serious effort to help his Constituents realise their wish to leave, in the true sense, and his Conservative government has so far failed to get anywhere near this, but has allowed the EU negotiators to take the initiative.

The easy way out of the EU is to repeal the 1972 European Communities Act, and then we can arrange mutually beneficial deals with anyone.

Britain has the bargaining advantage that the EU Countries rely on us more than we rely on them for trade and jobs, also we pay into the EU much more than we get out of it.

It would be foolish and self-destructive for us to remain within the EU.

We must leave now that we have the chance, and gain the freedom as an independent world-trading nation.

MP FOR HARLOW

ANOTHER busy month for me in Harlow.

First on the agenda has been tackling antisocial behaviour in the constituency. I've been working closely with the Chief Fire and Crime Commissioner at Essex Police, calling for more police presence on our streets to address gang activity and general trouble-making in parts of our town.

I'm also listening to the views of local shopkeepers around the Market Square where antisocial behaviour is making business owners fearful of coming to work.

These enterprising individuals bring so much to our community and I don't want this to affect their livelihoods.

Together with Essex Police, I've set up a meeting with local business owners to get a better understanding of the problem and work out a targeted solution, in the coming months.

I've had assurance from the police commissioner that there will be 150 more police officers to increase visibility on the streets in Harlow.

I've also been working hard to cut the cost of living. And it's good news, after my long campaign, Theresa May announced that there will be no fuel price rise for the ninth year running, saving motorists money at the petrol pumps.

On top of my ongoing efforts with fuel duty, I've been fully supportive of Theresa May's plans to cap our energy bills. The Big Six energy providers make over £1.4 billion every year from unnecessarily high tariffs. Meanwhile, hardworking residents in Harlow are under ever increasing financial pressure and it's the vulnerable and low-income earners that are paying the most.

This is not right. And it's not fair. I am pleased to see the Government taking action to put an end to this social injustice.

Also this month, I made another visit to Princess Alexandra NHS Hospital in Harlow for a Macmillan Coffee Morning. It was so great to speak to the wonderful staff and volunteers there, who are so selfless in their work and I am more spurred on than ever in my campaign for a new hospital health campus in Harlow.

Whilst the NHS employees are working incredibly hard to help patients in Harlow and the surrounding areas, it is now the quality of the infrastructure itself that is holding them back from making even more progress in their provision of services.

This is why, I've really been putting the pressure on in Parliament, this month, asking questions to the Health department, at every opportunity.

As ever, you can keep up to date with all my news on my Facebook page (Robert H Halfon), Twitter (@halfon4harlowMP) and Instagram (@halfon4harlowmp).

TALKING POINT

An increase in homes means an increase in people who need a GP

THE BIG QUESTION

Is housing development having an impact on our local GP services?

HARLOW ALLIANCE: Nicholas Taylor

THE need for more doctors and health care staff to match the rapid increase in demand for services locally is already being felt by residents across the district when trying to get a doctors appointment or waiting for some of the services provided by Harlow's hospital.

This does not bode well for Harlow Council's Local Plan, to allow the building of thousands of homes in and around the town.

The plan acknowledges that more services will be required, but identifies that there is at least a £91 million shortfall to improve the towns infrastructure.

Whilst this money might well become available, doctors and other staff will still need to be found to fill job vacancies.

The closing of Osler House earlier this year demonstrated that surgeries have to be properly funded and able to attract doctors and other staff into accommodation which meets the needs of a modern health service.

A new hospital is at least nine years away, in the meantime, thousands of homes could be built in its catchment area.

New health centres will need to be built alongside these new homes and unless they, together with the new infrastructure are built at the same time, then the pressure on existing health centres will become even worse than they are now.

The Harlow Alliance Party has been very critical of Harlow Council for not consulting with residents and those providing local services about its Local Plan.

One of the many points we intend to pursue is the fact that whilst the plan notes the housing needs of those with physical impairment and the elderly, there is no suggestion that bungalows should be built.

The medical and social care needs of many residents could be reduced if more homes of this type were built.

LABOUR: Joe Dunne

ANY housing development, large or small, unless properly planned, will have an impact on local amenities like schools and GP surgeries.

The key is effective planning controls and an insistence that developers contribute properly to infrastructure. Sadly this is not something the Conservative government of the last eight years has done.

Take a local example. In Harlow we're all aware of former offices and warehouses changing into residential properties.

This can be done without planning permission from the council, without consultation with affected neighbours and without a contribution to infrastructure, all thanks to a piece of Tory legislation called permitted development.

Because these developments happen quickly, the conversions are often unsuitable for the tenants they house and they are unlikely to be regulated for quality and safety in the way that planned developments are.

The Labour-led Harlow Council has recognised the problem of creating new homes isolated from infrastructure, parks and schools and has put a block on new developments of this kind, whilst at the same time kick-starting the building of council houses that are affordable in the real sense.

As for the pressure on GP surgeries, what doesn't help is the government running GP surgeries as private businesses, with the result that surgeries such as Osler House in Potter Street, can close because it is losing money. This is a direct result of the Health and Social Care Act 2012, a piece of legislation that has also opened our NHS up to much more privatisation and has led to the current crisis in our health service.

What this country urgently needs is a government that will bring back much needed regulation to all new residences, build homes and infrastructure fit for the 21st century as well as properly funding our cherished health service. All this is possible if it clamped down on tax evasion making our country work for all, not just a narrow few.

Signing up for hospice's club gives charity and networking a boost

ST CLARE OFFERS BUSINESSES FOUR LEVELS OF MEMBERSHIP FOR A BIG RANGE OF BENEFITS

THE St Clare Business Club has been officially launched.

The Business Club is a key part of the St Clare Hospice's corporate partnership strategy and offers businesses tangible benefits, as well as providing key support for the charity.

Joining the club is incredibly easy, with members able to make a one-off donation, or simply sign-up for a monthly donation of just £21 per month.

St Clare Hospice's corporate partnerships manager, Amy Jacobs, said: "Over the past decade we have seen a national movement in businesses away from philanthropy and non-strategic donations, to developing long-lasting and mutually beneficial partnerships with charities.

Golf day's £43k total helps change lives of ill children

DANIEL Robinson and Sons, whose main branch office is in South Street, Bishop's Stortford, and largest branch is in Wych Elm in Harlow, is better known being a local independent family funeral director.

But once a year the company becomes a first class charity fundraiser when it holds its annual charity golf day.

This year, 35 teams took part in the golf day, held at Colne Valley Golf Club.

The day always attracts a lot of interest and this year BBC Essex breakfast business team's Ben and Sonia arrived to record an interview for their show.

After a day of golf, putting and chipping, followed by a tombola and charity auction in the evening, the total amount raised was more than had been raised at any of the previous 14 golf days, a staggering £43,000.

Gary Neill, managing director of Daniel Robinson and Sons, was delighted and said: "These funds will help four local children who all have cerebral palsy in their lower limbs - Lenny, Summer, Lincoln and Aiden.

"They will all now be able to benefit from intensive private physiotherapy and equipment.

"This money will change their levels of mobility forever and help them to build a better future.

"I can't thank enough those people who made this possible by making donations or taking part in the day."

New contract gives advice centre for vulnerable a boost

A HARLOW service which provides much-needed specialist advice and help for people with housing, debt and welfare benefit problems has received a welcome boost, thanks to the Legal Aid Agency which has awarded it a three-year contract.

The contract has enabled Harlow Advice Centre, based upstairs in the library in Broad Walk, to recruit a full-time housing adviser, and increase its opening hours to offer a service between 10am and 5pm on weekdays. Callers need to phone 01279 704002 to gain access on Wednesdays.

Advice Centre staff and trustees have had several reasons to celebrate recently.

The service has been awarded the advice sector's national Specialist Quality Mark (SQM), which denotes the ability to deliver advice on complex legal matters. The Advice Centre is the only Harlow advice agency which currently meets the exacting standards required for the SQM.

The service has been awarded a Big Issue Investment to support its work, and has also secured an agreement to supply housing casework for Islington Law Centre.

Les Coben, chair of Harlow Advice Centre's board of trustees, said: "We are delighted to be able to increase the number of people we can help following the award of the legal aid contract."

"Thanks to the financial support received from the Legal Aid Agency and Big Issue Invest we can supply much-needed additional services for local residents. These awards demonstrate real confidence in the service's professionalism."

Mr Coben paid tribute to the hard work of staff and trustees. "Obtaining the SQM is a testament to their hard work. The central library, where we are based, has also been supportive. The temporary agreement with Islington Law Centre is beneficial for both services because it allows Harlow Advice Centre to benefit from the expertise of a much larger service while we help with a short-term need by providing help with housing cases."

Mr Coben explained that the work of the Advice Centre helped Harlow residents on low incomes gain hundreds of thousands of pounds in unclaimed entitlements and through expert debt advice, which can include write-offs.

"Many clients would have lost their homes, or still be suffering from extreme financial hardship were it not for the support provided by the Advice Centre's small but dedicated and specialist-trained team," he said.

Students take a close look at the world of work

PUBLIC Health England hosted what it hopes will be the first of several work experience visits for students from Harlow where it is creating a world-leading public health science campus.

Six students from Harlow College were given an introduction to a wide range of PHE work.

They spent a day in the teaching laboratory learning some basic techniques used in microbiology.

They then moved on to other areas including bioinformatics; sequencing; statistics and modelling; food, water and environmental microbiology; a brief history of bacteriology and a visit to the electron microscope suite.

They were also given an insight into an emergency response to an outbreak and the work of the Biological Services Department.

Hannah McGregor, QC supervisor, NCTC, culture collections at PHE Colindale said: "The experience was really rewarding especially when the students were excited to hear about how they could work for PHE and how we have inspired their future career paths.

"I hope we can run more work experience weeks with Harlow students with more colleagues across PHE providing an insight into the work we do."

Amanda Rosier, head of science at Harlow College, said: "The students found the opportunity of working at PHE invaluable and the experience has helped them understand how a career in science can be both rewarding and enjoyable.

"We are looking forward to working closely with PHE in the future as their move to the Harlow premises becomes imminent."

Christine McCartney, scientific advisor to PHE's Science Hub programme, who is working closely with local stakeholders such as universities and FEIs, said: "Developing close links with the local colleges and universities is a crucial part of our planning for Harlow so I was delighted this went so well.

"The feedback from the students showed they have a real interest in both PHE and our work."

Bad Times At
The El Royale
KIMBERLEY FRENCH

BAD TIMES AT THE EL ROYALE (15)

AT least one guest of a themed hotel, which straddles the state line between California and Nevada, checks out of their room in a body bag in writer-director Drew Goddard's stylish 1960s-set thriller.

Bookmarked into meaty chapters, Bad Times At The El Royale employs a fractured timeline and narrative sleights of hand to piece together an intriguing jigsaw puzzle of subterfuge, self-sacrifice and reckless abandon.

Goddard was deservedly Oscar-nominated for his adapted screenplay of The Martian, and here he confirms a flair for snappy dialogue and eye-catching set pieces.

His script withholds vital information about characters and their motives, and he confidently revisits key sequences from multiple perspectives to illustrate how the grim fates of hotel patrons intersect.

At least one tense interlude relies on incredible luck and split-second timing to thicken the air of intrigue but it's hard to resist the slippery charm of Goddard's ambitious design even when the film strains credibility.

Yeti action in Small Foot
WARNER BROS.

SMALLFOOT (U)

CURIOSITY killed the yak in director Karey Kirkpatrick's effervescent computer-animated romp, which follows an inquisitive Yeti (voiced by Channing Tatum), who comes in from the cold to prove the existence of a race of diminutive hairless creatures called humans.

Smallfoot is festooned with far-from-abominable snowmen and snowwomen, who live in a thriving mountain-top community, which is hidden from prying eyes by a ring of high-altitude cloud.

Ignorance is bliss until one member of the community publicly challenges the veracity of the runes and forces his fellow Yetis to ask probing questions of the people in power.

Kirkpatrick's film is a simplistic but breezily charming adventure, which encourages independent thought rather than slavishly following the herd.

Ryan Gosling as Neil Armstrong
in First Man
DANIEL MCFADDEN

ONE GIANT LEAP

FIRST MAN (12A)

ACADEMY Award-winning director Damien Chazelle takes one giant leap for immersive, nail-biting filmmaking in this thrilling dramatisation of the space race between America and the Soviet Union.

Based on James R Hansen's official biography of Neil Armstrong, First Man shoots for the moon and touches down beautifully by placing us alongside astronauts in their claustrophobic modules or next to nervous Nasa staff as they propel mankind into the great unknown.

Handheld camerawork, unobtrusive special effects and dazzling sound design leave us stranded hundreds of miles above terra firma in a similar fashion to Alfonso Cuarón's Gravity, at the mercy of new-fangled technology and luck.

The tension is almost unbearable.

Chazelle masterfully encourages us to hold our breath and bite our nails down to the cuticle with bold visual flourishes and understated, powerhouse performances from Ryan Gosling and Claire Foy as the husband and wife at the epicentre of the 1969 lunar landing.

The ensemble cast, which includes Kyle

Chandler, Jason Clarke and Ciarán Hinds, counts down to heartbreaking emotion, reminding us of the incredible bravery of pioneers who sacrificed their lives in the pursuit of a brave new scientific dawn.

First Man is a tour-de-force of technical brilliance, including editor Tom Cross, cinematographer Linus Sandgren and composer Justin Hurwitz, who added Oscars to their respective mantelpieces for their collaborations with Chazelle on Whiplash or La La Land.

Josh Singer's finely calibrated script follows Neil Armstrong (Gosling), his wife Janet (Foy) and their boys Rick (Luke Winters) and Mark (Connor Blodgett) through the triumphs and setbacks of Nasa missions during the 1960s, culminating in the Apollo 11 launch which secured a place in history for Armstrong, Buzz Aldrin (Corey Stoll) and Michael Collins (Lukas Haas).

The film chooses a chronological trajectory, sketching Neil's close working relationships with Nasa chief Deke Slayton (Kyle Chandler) and fellow astronaut Ed White (Jason Clarke), who becomes the first American to walk in space.

Tragedy casts a long shadow over the Armstrongs.

The couple struggle to cope with the death of their young daughter Karen and then the family shares the burden of grief when the Apollo 1 mission ends in disaster.

"We need to fail down here so we don't fail up there," coolly asserts Neil.

First Man is an out-of-this-world experience that will be a serious contender for glory in next year's hard-fought Oscars race.

Gosling subtly yet movingly conveys the suffocating grief, which follows Armstrong to the surface of the moon, and Foy is compelling in a smaller supporting role, refusing to accept that the brilliant minds of Nasa have everything under control.

"You're a bunch of boys making models out of balsa wood," she rages. "You don't have anything under control!"

Chazelle, on the other hand, is firmly in charge of every sparkling frame.

SOUND OUT

There goes Rhyming Simon

IT'S hard to imagine one of the most celebrated singer-songwriters in the history of pop music being starstruck.

As a flattered Paul Simon thanks me after I explain how surreal it feels to speak to him, he quickly blows that perception out of the water.

"Yeah, that is kind of a mind-blowing thing," the 76-year-old acknowledges down the phone from his home in New York, where he is looking out across the Atlantic from the tip of Long Island.

"I had the same feeling when Artie and I performed with The Everly Brothers. We kept saying, 'Can you believe it? The Everly Brothers are in our show!' They were our childhood idols. It's a funny feeling."

He adds: "I just saw Don Everly when I played in Nashville. He came up and we sang Bye Bye Love together, which was kind of touching for me, you know?"

That song seems poignant as Paul prepares to close his farewell tour with a run of US shows.

In February, he announced he would stop touring following his latest global jaunt, which took in London's Hyde Park in July.

There's a sense of relief in Paul's voice as he explains his reasoning for hanging up his gigging hat.

"I keep trying to introduce a couple of new songs every time I play. I feel like I have to play the well-known songs because people want to hear them."

"The show I do is kind of locked into a certain repertoire. And it's a good one too. It's just... I've done it now. It's a good time to stop because nothing is broken."

"My voice is still good, my energy is good, the band is great. I don't want to be the last one at the party."

"I'd like to perform again in a while. I want to really stop and clear my mind of 60 years of performing, so that will take a while."

"Then, when I perform again, if I do, I'd like to do it in smaller places that are acoustically right and give the money to causes I support."

"I don't feel I need to work for money anymore, I'd rather be giving it. I could see myself coming back to the UK and playing for something that is of value."

"But I'm not going to go on a long trek and be away from my family on the road anymore."

Drawing up a set list that accommodates You Can Call Me Al and lesser known gems from his solo career must be difficult.

It's the latter that Paul has turned his attention to for his latest studio album. He has re-recorded 10 of his personal favourites that he feels didn't have an impact when they were first released.

"I really approached it like a new album. I was using new musicians and totally different arrangements. It was the first time for me playing with all jazz players."

"These songs are actually as good as anything I am writing now. I haven't written for a couple of years now. I don't know if I'll do it again or not.

"I have to stop in order to make something really interesting. It's not like I'm writing hits anymore."

"What's important for me as an artist is to revitalise my thinking. What's important for me is to just stop. Maybe look at the planet for a while and get the picture of who I am and what we are as a planet."

"I'd like to travel to places that I haven't been to."

"I'm curious to stop for the pleasure of it and what, if anything, comes from breaking the mode of how I create."

Paul reveals the lyrics he has revisited still speak to the divisive atmosphere in Donald Trump's America. A vocal environmentalist, the decision to withdraw the US from the Paris Agreement on climate change clearly troubles Paul.

"It's criminal rolling back on clean air acts. It makes no sense to allow more pollution so somebody can profit from it."

Heroes and villain: The Everly Brothers and President Donald Trump, whose decision to pull out of the climate change Paris Agreement frustrated Paul

Paul says the versions of Bridge Over Troubled Water by Aretha Franklin and Art Garfunkel are among his favourite performances of one of his songs

"It makes you just wonder, 'What's wrong with these people?' It's very tense here and people are very angry. They seem to be that way all around the globe."

"The anger is exacting a toll on people's health, I'm sure. It certainly doesn't help in solving problems."

"You're much better off trying to solve problems if you have a cool head. This antagonism is detrimental to the fabric of society."

"Racism, sexism, the LGBTQ community, are all human issues. But if there is no planet to sustain the species, all these issues become moot. Let's try and fix this planet."

"I don't agree with the idea that we're going to find some other planet when we have a potential paradise here."

"I think we have to save this place, it's incredible. I feel really bad about leaving this to my kids."

As our conversation draws to a close, I ask Paul - given he has reworked some of his old material - which artist has done the best cover of one of his songs.

"I would say Aretha Franklin's version of Bridge Over Troubled Water was extraordinary. So was Artie's version. They were both very different."

"Of course it's sad that Aretha passed away, but this is my generation. We're all gradually leaving. Fortunately her recordings remain."

"She was going to do a final tour, but I don't think she ever got there. It makes me feel that I did my final tour at the right time."

"I don't feel diminished by time at this point, but eventually I would be."

"It's a good time to stop while I'm still going strong."

CAT POWER - WANDERER

THIS cat bites. On her 10th album as Cat Power, iconoclastic American artist Chan Marshall takes aim at targets of her wrath and annihilates with a succession of devastating lyrical lacerations. From the short, folksy, a cappella title track, until the record wraps with a string-accompanied reprise, Marshall casts a scornful eye across America.

Lead single, Woman, is anthemic, sinewy and forthright. Lana Del Rey, a long-time admirer, joins Marshall on vocals, the pair combining for a hallelujah to femininity. Marshall covers Rihanna's Stay, her smoky, soulful voice adding a tender timbre.

Black is perhaps Marshall's #MeToo moment, a withering takedown of entitled men. A strident, darkly majestic work.

KATIE MELUA - ULTIMATE COLLECTION

KATIE Melua, the Georgian-British singer-songwriter and musician - whose otherworldly voice can inexplicably make you weep and feel pure elation at the same time - has possibly bested her previous efforts with a beautiful rendition of Shirley Bassey's Diamonds Are Forever. Cloaked in her trademark subtlety, it is one of two fresh tracks on her new greatest hits offering, Ultimate Collection.

Melua is one of the most talented musicians of her generation. You either already admire her music's mesmerising beauty and simplicity, or you don't know her at all. If the latter is true, this is the perfect way to educate yourself.

KT TUNSTALL - WAX

KT TUNSTALL rocks! Wax has powerful electric guitars to the fore, including from former Ash axe-slinger Charlotte Hatherley.

Opener Little Red Thread's staccato riff sets the tone before she embraces her sexy side on Human Being and The River.

The album hits its stride midway through, with The Healer (Redux), the heaviest song, followed by possibly the best, Dark Side Of Me.

Then the emotional, but more musically understated, closing pair of The Night That Bowie Died and Tiny Love, provide a strong finish.

A Channel trip that Chas never forgot

By STEVE CRANCHER

steve.crancher@reachplc.com

CHAS Hodges, who died recently at the age of 74, was a rock and roll legend.

He frequently rocked Southend's Cliffs Pavilion as half of the superb Chas and Dave, but he also played with a bassist and drummer a few times at the seaside town's excellent Railway Hotel in later years, and he packed it out every time.

Now the pub is to stage a tribute night in his honour in December.

Being one half of rockney duo Chas and Dave thrust him into the spotlight but in the early 60s, Chas played bass with Jerry Lee Lewis on a boat from Southend Pier across the choppy English Channel, with one arm hooked around a post to steady himself while people around him saw their lunch for a second time.

And it was watching Jerry Lee that inspired Chas to switch to piano.

For a few short years in the late 50s and early 60s, a rock and roll cruise called Rock Across The Channel set sail from Southend Pier to Calais aboard the Royal Daffodil.

These were wild, mostly drunken events. As well as top-name acts, local bands got themselves gigs on the boat.

One of these was Micky Law and The Statesmen, who were on board with The Shadows and Vince Taylor and The Playboys in 1962.

"It was crazy on that boat," recalled front man, Micky Law. "There were hundreds of people everywhere, vomiting, boozing, smoking reefers."

The first of these trips were organised by a former Australian wrestler named Paul Lincoln, whose professional name had been Dr Death.

He also ran the famous 2i's coffee bar in Soho, where the careers of many 1950s stars, such as Cliff Richard and Tommy Steele, were launched. Lincoln, then, was able to book world famous acts for the cruises.

The 1963 cruise turned out to be the last because of the unruly behaviour of British teenagers in Calais.

The Outlaws were booked on that trip with Chas Hodges on bass, and so was Jerry Lee Lewis. The band ended up as Jerry Lee's backing band for his performance.

Chas was the bass guitarist in legendary producer Joe Meek's studio band The Outlaws, playing on huge hits of the early 60s, such as Richie Valence's 'death rock' classic Tell Laura I Love Her.

In 1957, the Royal Daffodil was given a cordial reception in Calais, greeted by a mayor's delegation and serenaded by the town's brass band. But in 1963 it was pelted with beer cans and bottles as it left the harbourside. In 2010 I interviewed Chas, who had lived in Broxbourne since the 1970s, about the cruise.

He said: "I was playing bass in The Outlaws and we were on tour backing Jerry Lee Lewis.

Ritchie Blackmore on guitar, Ken Lundgren on guitar and Jerry's drummer, Maurice Tarrant.

"I stood on the gangplank and refused to move until our gear arrived."

Chas Hodges

"It was at the end of the British tour before we went over to Germany. My girlfriend Joan came on the trip with my mum."

Chas added that Joan later became Mrs Hodges.

"The boat left from Southend," he recalled. "In those days there was no such thing as all-day opening hours for alcohol but as soon as the boat was outside the three-mile limit, no such rules applied, so the bar was opened. And the English got on it!"

"The crossing was very choppy and I remember being able to keep steady as I stood up to play by looping my left arm round a pillar between me and my guitar."

"Jerry Lee and the band, in the small space that we had, were rocking well to a small bunch of people while all around others were getting more and more drunk and disappearing outside for a spew.

Chas Hodges, who died recently at 74

"We finally got to Calais and were greeted by waving people with smiling faces from those around the harbour. We all got off to do a gig in The Casino, a few hundred yards up the harbour."

"But the English were forming little groups and were getting cocky and lairy. I remember having to walk by them with my very pretty girlfriend and they were trying to get her away from me."

"After the gig we were getting reports as we walked back that fights had been going on around town. We finally got to the boat and the captain said we have to leave immediately.

"I said we can't because our gear ain't got here yet. The captain said he's pulling up the gangplank because he was worried about the roughs getting aboard."

"So I stood on the gangplank and refused to move until our gear arrived."

Chas stood there for about 15 minutes, refusing to budge as the captain threatened him.

He said: "Finally the gear arrived and we pulled away from the harbour. There were no smiles from those in the harbour this time. They threw bottles and beer cans to send us on our way."

DOWN THE PUB

The Records
Crashes album
Brown, Will Birch,
Jude Cole, John

THIS week's Down The Pub column is dedicated to guitarist John Wicks, who died at the weekend.

John lived in Southend and was one of the founder members of power pop band The Records, who had a minor US hit in 1978 with the superb Starry Eyes.

The band was formed out of the embers of pub rockers the Kursaal Flyers by composer John and drummer/lyricist Will Birch. They were at the forefront of the new, US-style power pop genre, and toured extensively across the States as well as in the UK.

The band's first album, Shades In Bed, was critically acclaimed (Allmusic called it a "pure pop masterpiece") and, like the single, was a minor hit across the Atlantic. After more singles and albums which failed to chart, the band split in the early 1980s and later, John moved from his Southend home to California, where he continued to write and record.

CELEBRITY WELLBEING

Being happy with yourself and enjoying life is the best way of looking well

Katie Derham

SHE found fame as one of the country's youngest newsreaders – being signed up to front the ITV news at the tender age of 27 – but music broadcasting is how Katie Derham has really made her mark.

Now, Katie – a cornerstone of classical music radio and TV, as the face of the BBC Proms series (she also presents Radio 3's Afternoon On 3 programme and has a string of arts documentaries under her belt) – has written the foreword to The Classical Music Book.

"(It) reveals the fascinating background and stories about pieces and composers," explains Katie, who has two daughters – Natasha, 18, and Eleanor, 14 – with husband John Vincent, co-founder of the healthy fast-food restaurant chain, Leon.

"I hope a book like that helps break down the barrier to classical music. People don't realise it's all around us. It's often the basis for pop songs, film scores, and sound tracks for computer games," adds the presenter, who reached the final of BBC1's Strictly Come Dancing with pro dancer Anton du Beke in 2015.

Here, Katie, 48, tells us more about her passion for music, keeping fit post-Strictly, and coping with the shadow of dementia...

Katie with her husband John Vincent

What does music mean to you? MUSIC has a certain magic. It can transport us to a different world, drive us to dance, or remind us of lost loved ones.

A single chord can make you cry – I weep over some pieces – and get rid of all those emotions that might have been building up.

I use music to wake me up and get me going in the morning, to help me switch off, relax, and definitely to take me to other places.

From classical music to keeping up her Strictly Come Dancing fitness levels, BBC Proms presenter Katie Derham talks to GABRIELLE FAGAN about life and love

I play violin and piano and perform with my local orchestra, and accompany my daughters on the piano as they're studying singing.

One of the best ways of getting rid of the rubbish of the day is to open your mouth and sing a song.

I think music's all powerful, really.

What's it like presenting the BBC Proms series?

IT'S a dream job. I love talking about music and, as it's live, it keeps me on my toes and the adrenaline pumping. That sort of broadcasting is a combination of being spontaneous, busking it on occasions, and having loads of research and background material in your head to draw on.

You've got an image of being rather prim, proper and controlled. Is that accurate?

NO, NOT at all! Sometimes I don't recognise myself from those descriptions.

I was a newsreader for a long time, so I'm not exactly surprised people may have the view, 'she's very serious', because it wouldn't have been appropriate to crack gags or be too perky and relaxed.

In truth, I dislike talking about myself, and I can't tell people what to write about me.

I'd describe myself as laid-back and positive and, I confess, with a competitive streak, as anyone who's played Monopoly or Trivial Pursuit with me will know!

How important is your husband, John to your happiness?

WE'VE been married 24 years. It's crucial to us that we keep a balance in our lives and make time for each other. We support each other hugely.

How do you look after your health?

TAKING part in Strictly Come Dancing was like going on an enforced fitness regime, and I've tried to keep that level of fitness going. It was amazing to win last year's Strictly Christmas Special.

John's keen for us to find the time for dancing lessons, so we can enjoy it together. I run a couple of times a week, and have phases of doing yoga. Over the last couple of years, a gluten-free diet has helped my skin.

I'm very much of the view that, as women, we ought to chill our boots and not worry so much about the pressure we're put under to look a certain way.

I believe it's about moderation in all things – eating healthily, getting enough sleep, avoiding smoking and not drinking too much. Being happy with yourself and enjoying life is the best way of looking well.

Of course, there are some days when I look in the mirror and wish things were different, but I feel no different from when I was 26.

I'm pretty much the same person as I was before I had children, but better off for having them. My daughters are a constant source of hilarity and a delight, even though they constantly borrow my clothes and make-up!

What about your wellbeing?

MASSAGE ought to be available on the NHS for everyone, because it's so good at relieving stress and sorting out aches and pains.

We live in Haywards Heath (in Sussex) and just being surrounded by green fields and trees and gardening makes you forget about an awful lot of the nonsense in daily life. Simple pleasures make me happy: Time with the family, seeing friends, a glass of wine, a good box-set or an absorbing book.

What has been the worst time of your life?

WHEN my mother, Margaret died of early-onset dementia (she was diagnosed at 56 and died aged 61).

Do I wake up in the middle of the night worrying about (developing) it? No, that's not the way to live your life. After all, I could get knocked down by a bus tomorrow.

Who knows what's around the corner? But it's not an end that anybody would choose.

I do as much as I can to support charities researching Alzheimer's and dementia, keep myself fit, and do cognitive things to keep my brain working, as well as taking supplements. It's all good, sensible, lifestyle stuff which seems appropriate to help stave off the chances of developing it.

Would you ever take part in another reality show?

I LEARNT to conduct in BBC's Maestro competition in 2008, re-learned the violin in 2010 for First Love for Sky Arts, and of course Strictly, but I think that's my limit.

I'm not a very good cook and you wouldn't catch me going anywhere near I'm A Celebrity... Kangaroo testicles don't massively appeal to me as a dish!

DOCTOR'S NOTES

'EARLY DEATH' RISK OF DAILY WINE DRINKS

THE benefits of a glass of red wine may have been exaggerated – if you have the tippie more than four times a week. US researchers found even light amounts of wine every day increased risk of early death by 20% on average.

Past studies had shown antioxidants in red wine can cut the risk of blood clots and stress.

But a Washington School of Medicine team said: "One or two drinks about four days per week seemed to protect against cardiovascular disease, but drinking every day eliminated those benefits. With cancer risk, any drinking was detrimental."

WOMEN FACE TRIPLE THREAT

NEARLY half of women will be diagnosed with Parkinson's disease, develop dementia or suffer a stroke in their lifetime.

A 30-year study at Erasmus University, Rotterdam, found women are much more likely to be affected than men, but a healthy lifestyle could "substantially" reduce the burden of the illnesses.

FOOD & DRINK

INGREDIENTS (Serves 2)

2 large sweet potatoes (600g), scrubbed clean
2tsp olive oil
Salt and black pepper
40ml rice vinegar
2g caster sugar
1 red chilli, de-seeded and finely sliced
¼ red onion, finely sliced
¼ cucumber (80g), de-seeded and cut into thin half-moons
2 x 200g skinless and boneless cod fillets
30g tikka masala curry paste
2 burger buns
To serve:
1tbsp fat-free Greek yoghurt
1 tomato, thinly sliced
1tbsp coriander, chopped

METHOD:

1. Cut each sweet potato in half lengthways, then cut into eight long, thin wedges and scatter over one layer on a baking tray.
2. Drizzle over the olive oil along with a good pinch of salt, toss to mix then roast for 25 minutes.
3. Mix together the rice vinegar, sugar, red chilli, onion and cucumber in a small bowl and leave to steep, giving it a mix every now and then.

4. Coat the cod fillets in the curry paste then place onto a baking tray lined with parchment and roast in the oven for 15 minutes, by which time they should be just cooked through. When the fish has only five minutes to go, cut the buns in half and toast in the oven.

5. To build the burger, spread a little yoghurt onto two bun halves, load up with sliced tomato, lay the fish on top then scatter the cucumber mix over (drain off the excess vinegar). Finish with the coriander and squash the remaining bun halves on top. Serve with the sweet potato fries.

AS bestselling cookbook authors go, Joe Wicks is a bit of an anomaly. He's not had any professional chef training, never even worked in a kitchen – and in fact only learned how to cook a steak medium-rare a couple of years ago.

Yet he's just released his sixth recipe collection, Joe's 30-Minute Meals, and has the UK's second bestselling cookbook in history under his belt (Jamie Oliver holds the top spot), overtaking many Michelin-starred and celebrity TV chefs.

So how has he done it? A thoroughly modern star, Joe built his – now multi-million-pound – empire through social media, posting short videos of himself working out, or throwing his healthy dinners together. His chirpy personality, along with his trademark style of shouting the ingredients as he throws them in, has helped the PT with gravity defying curls gain an audience of 2.3 million on Instagram as The Body Coach.

Joe's latest book sees him move from 'Lean in 15' – the concept that catapulted him to the top of bestseller lists – to meals that take double that time but are still quick and easy, and show off what he says is the evolution of his own skills in the kitchen. "I've kind of progressed a bit as a cook [he won't call himself a chef] and I wanted to introduce recipes I'm enjoying now," he says. "I used to think risotto was the hardest thing on earth to cook."

That's perhaps what's so charming, he's no Raymond Blanc and isn't trying to be. Joe was brought up on frozen chicken nuggets and fish fingers and it wasn't until his 20s that he got into cooking, alongside his love of fitness.

DADDY DUTIES

JOE and his girlfriend, model Rosie Jones, welcomed their daughter Indie in July. "She's just the cutest, I can't wait to go home and see her," he gushes. "She's been a joy – even if she wakes up in the night she makes the cutest sounds."

GRAB A WICK BITE

THE BODY COACH IS BACK – THIS TIME WITH A BATCH OF 30-MINUTE RECIPES. HE TELLS LAUREN TAYLOR ALL ABOUT IT

Joe Wicks still refuses to call himself a chef, despite selling huge numbers of recipe books

SPEED AND EASE

HE describes his latest book as "a bit more grown-up", written with whole households in mind. The 30-minute meal concept has, of course, been done before, most famously by Jamie Oliver (one of Joe's food heroes and now friend) – but fast, easy healthy meals was a trend Joe helped grow in the online world, when Instagram first took off. Not that success came overnight, and he acknowledges he captured his audience at just the right moment. "It's taken years of [building] trust and giving out all this content. If I started today with my Instagram, with the same idea, exactly the same personality, I would have nowhere near the success I've had," he reflects. "I had a good idea, at the right time."

THE CARB FACTOR

EACH recipe in the new book is marked either 'reduced-carb' (higher in fat and protein) or 'carb refuel' (lower in fat, higher in carbs), a concept Joe's fans will be familiar with. The idea is that you eat the former on days when you do less activity, and the latter after a workout: "Your muscles enjoy that refuel process."

FORGET CALORIES

"MY biggest criticism from anyone – I always get stick from personal trainers – is always the fact that I don't list calories and macros [macronutrients]. I'll always stand by it – I don't believe in calorie counting. I don't think it's a healthy relationship to have with food. "Back in the day, before we understood what calories were, we were fine! We ate intuitively, we exercised," he adds.

"Weighing yourself every day and counting calories... You can't hit a daily target – your body doesn't work like that."

"People like realistic, they like having a treat and not feeling bad. If you ate a little bit more food today, that's fine – get up and have a workout, and be a bit more sensible tomorrow. There's no perfect day."

THOSE wine labels are key to our buying habits and Aldi has hit on a canny marketing idea to draw us in to a new range of wines.

If you see "chicken" or "lamb" or "pizza" shouting at you in italics from the retailer's wine aisles it is because the "this loves" range hooks into our desire to choose the best wine to go with food.

It's a clever little ploy which will see six new wines introduced by the end of this month. The wines (all £4.99) are three whites – chardonnay, chenin blanc, pinot grigio – and three reds – sangiovese, malbec-shiraz and monastrell-petit verdot.

I like it when a food gauntlet is thrown down and couldn't resist a little

RAISE A GLASS

culinary playfulness.

I cooked pizza and poured "this sangiovese loves pizza" (12.5% abv) and, for less than a fiver, I thought it was a happy little wine.

I disagree with the label description "richly full bodied" as it is more lightly bodied and fruity but that aside, the cherry flavour notes and decent acidity said "hey" to my pepperoni pizza and it said "hey" back.

I made a hot pot and shared a bottle of "this monastrell petit verdot loves lamb" (13% abv) with chums, who agreed this wine did indeed love lamb.

It has a combination of spice, black fruits, herbs and a flicker of violet which made this wine my favourite of the range. (Saying that, I've still to track down the "steak-loving" malbec.)

I wasn't as taken with the three whites, the "this chardonnay loves chicken" (12.5% abv) being the best pick.

I'd fried chicken thighs in Moroccan spices with chilli and peppers and folded in some couscous; perhaps that's not the chicken theme Aldi had in mind, but the light fruitiness of the chardonnay (apples and citrus) cut through the spice and was a refreshing counterbalance.

You know I'm not a lover of pinot grigio (which "loves fish") and it was, well, it was OK-ish; and the chenin blanc which "loves fish and chips" was another so-so wine, light on flavour, fruit and the satisfaction factor.

Overall though, not bad.

ALSO IN MY GLASS ...

THE words "rhubarb" and "gin" combined on a label are pretty much guaranteed to make me sit up and take notice.

I'm told October is Rhubarb Month, so I decided it was rude not to have a little sip or two of Jawbox Rhubarb and Ginger Gin Liqueur (RRP £25, for 70cl from several online retailers including Amazon, Ocado, masterofmalt.com, thewhiskyexchange.com). It is created in Belfast at the home of Jawbox Small Batch Gin, which is at the heart of the liqueur, and is a pretty baby-blush colour. The sweetness of rhubarb on the nose is countered by a warming spice of ginger and the flavours combined happily.

The team from Jawbox suggests you can top up a small pour with prosecco or ginger ale. There's a sister drink, Jawbox Pineapple & Ginger Liqueur (same price and stockists, left) which has pineapple on the nose; it was a bit syrupy and too sweet for my taste.

250g lamb mince
250g beef mince
1tbsp ground cinnamon
1tbsp ground cumin
1tbsp sweet smoked paprika
Salt and black pepper
1tbsp tomato puree
100ml beef stock
70g pine nuts
1/2 bunch of coriander, roughly chopped
225g pizza mozzarella, patted dry
Rocket, to serve

METHOD

1. Preheat the oven to 210°C (fan 190°C/gas mark 6-7). Lay the peppers on a baking tray in a single layer, drizzle over the olive oil and roast in the hot oven for 20 minutes.

THE STUFF OF DREAMS*KOFTA-STUFFED ROMANO PEPPERS

2. Meanwhile, melt the coconut oil in a large frying pan over a medium to high heat, then add the red onion and garlic and fry for three to four minutes or until just soft.
3. Crank up the heat to maximum and add the aubergine and both types of mince. Fry the ingredients over the high heat, stirring occasionally for a few minutes, breaking up the mince with a wooden spoon. Sprinkle in the cinnamon, cumin and paprika and stir to incorporate.

4. Season with a generous amount of salt and pepper, then add the tomato puree along with the beef stock and let the mixture simmer away – you don't want it to be too wet. After a couple of minutes, turn the heat off and stir through the pine nuts and chopped coriander.
5. Remove the roasted peppers from the oven. They should have collapsed a little but still be holding their shape. Carefully drain off liquid that may have been produced while roasting, then fill the cavities with the mixture.
6. Slice the mozzarella and arrange over the mince, then slide the tray back into the oven and bake for a further 10 minutes. Serve up with a generous helping of rocket.

Family home in Stansted is full of space and light

This spacious three-bed semi detached home has just come on the market. Situated in the heart of Stansted Mountfitchet, this home on Bentfield Gardens is set in a sought-after location just a short walk to local schools and the village centre.

The house, put on the market by Park Lane Property Agents, is perfect for families with a sizeable interior and large front and back garden – plenty of space for the kids to let off some steam.

The front garden, which is laid to lawn, is immaculately maintained with a pathway that leads up to the front door.

Once inside, the spacious entrance hallway will lead you into an open plan living room, large enough to have a dining area.

Filled with natural light from windows at both ends, the room enjoys views of front and rear gardens, with double doors opening up onto a patio area.

The kitchen is modern, has good storage and room for all of your essential facilities.

Moving upstairs and you'll find two well-sized double bedrooms and a slightly smaller single room.

In the warmer months, you'll be able to enjoy days in a beautiful, secluded rear garden. And for a quick exit into the village, there's a wooden gate at the back which backs onto a path leading towards the shops.

There is a private parking bay and opposite is the single garage with further parking – perfect if you're a family with more than one car.

This house is also ideal for commuters, with links to London Liverpool Street and Cambridge.

It is ideal for a young family, as there are a number of local primary and secondary schools in the area.

To view this property or request more details, contact Park Lane Property Agents in Bishops Stortford on 01279 949127.

PROPERTY FOCUS

Ross Norman-Clarke looks at a selection of properties with cellars

Purils Hills House is a substantial property in Great Maplestead whose many features include a cellar accessed from the kitchen

CELLARS MARKET

Here in the UK, cellars generally seem to have gone out of fashion some time in the first half of the last century. And that's a shame, because even when they are only used for keeping wine or for general storage, cellars can be an invaluable (if largely unsung) asset to a property. So, this week, we went in search of homes with cellars, and succeeded in tracking down three.

For sale through Hetheringtons John D Wood with a guide price of £1.15 million is a fine five-bedroom detached period house on a corner plot within half a mile of Billericay railway station and high street. The versatile and elegantly proportioned accommodation boasts many original features including open fireplaces, and comprises, on the ground floor, an entrance lobby and hallway, a 19ft dual aspect living room with a bay window overlooking the garden, two further reception rooms (one with a bay window to the front) divided by a feature opening, a spacious kitchen/diner with a vaulted glass ceiling, a utility room with side access and a cloakroom. Accessed from the hallway, the cellar measures 15ft by 11ft 6ins, and is ideal for all manner of storage. On the first floor is a three-room master bedroom suite, two more double bedrooms and a family shower room, while the second floor offers a further two bedrooms and a family bathroom. Outside the established gardens surround the property with an array of seasonal flowers, mature shrubs and evergreens which provide seclusion and privacy. The property is approached via a driveway providing off-road parking and access to a single garage.

On the market via Beresfords with the added benefit of no onward chain is a substantial family home occupying a large plot of two thirds of an acre in a prominent position on Galleywood Road in Great Baddow. The property offers ample living accommodation with four reception rooms, including a 21ft living/cinema room complete with a modern, purpose-built circular wine cellar let into the floor, an open-plan kitchen/breakfast room, a separate utility room and a cloakroom. On the first floor are five good-sized double bedrooms, with the master having both an en suite and a dedicated dressing area, plus a family shower room. In front of the property, there is off-road parking for a number of vehicles, while the rear garden features a large patio, as well as a covered seating area and a heated outside pool. The price: £1.2million.

Lastly this week, Purils Hill House is an impressive red-brick country residence set in some 10 acres of formal gardens and grounds surrounded by open countryside on the outskirts of Great Maplestead. The property has been sympathetically modernised and extended and now offers superb, beautifully presented family accommodation in which the last word in contemporary style and comfort - including a Sonos sound system, multiscene lighting and remotely-controlled electric blinds - is balanced by a wealth of attractive period features. Upstairs, there are a total of six bedrooms (two with en suites) plus a family bathroom and separate shower room. The master suite can be accessed via its own staircase. The ground floor comprises a 24ft drawing room with a log burner, bi-fold doors opening into the conservatory, a separate dining room, a further sitting room, a period-style conservatory with a vaulted roof, a study, a magnificent 39ft kitchen/breakfast room with cherry cabinetry, granite worktops, a central island, an exceptional array of appliances including a wine cooler and a Quooker for instant boiling water and a walk-in pantry, a utility and a cloakroom. Access to the impressively-proportioned cellar is from the kitchen.

The property is approached via electric security gates and a long drive, and there are extensive formal gardens with a Koi carp pond, paddocks and a range of outbuildings including a double garage with bedroom/office above, a two-bedroom annex, barns and stabling. Purils Hill House is for sale through Strutt & Parker, with a guide price of £2.375million.

Show your decor some TLC with this season's bargain buys. GABRIELLE FAGAN reveals her top finds

Great style doesn't have to be super-expensive. After all, it's those fabulous finishing touches that really give a room personality and make it special.

There's a brilliant array of affordable homeware available on the high street right now, and you could even load up your trolley with on-trend accessories while doing your supermarket shop. Asda's George Home range and the Sainsbury's Home collection are both rightly renowned for their fashionable, purse-friendly items.

Whether you want to transform a living room or just a corner, or beautify a bedroom – take your pick from these brilliant buys to help turn rooms into stylish sanctuaries...

SHOW A LIVING SPACE SOME LOVE

A pale colour palette will make a room feel more spacious, and can still feel cosy if it's grounded by dark flooring or carpet. Curate your collection of accessories and rotate them using only a few at a time. That pared-back approach will let the details sing.

George Home's bang-up-to date range has all the ingredients for a luxe living space. Top picks include space-saving seating, such as their Glynn two-seater Sofa, £350, and knitted pouffe, £39.

DECOR TIP: A relaxed setting should never be cluttered. If you can't fit in bulky storage, use baskets and boxes. Paint surrounding walls the same shade as fitted cupboards, so they recede and don't dominate a room.

Premium cosy rug £35-£230, Next

Blue easy fit shade
£22, Sainsbury's Home

Ideal Home Freydis floor Lamp, £99.99; Hudson Living nest of tables, currently reduced from £169 to £149; Luxe Collection, genuine sheepskin wool Rug, Single, £59.99, Very.co.uk

CREATE A CHIC CORNER
Deep blues not only make a room feel calm and peaceful but will also add depth and drama. Create your own intimate space by switching light cottons for velvet and faux fur, to conjure a cossetting, cocooning effect. Add a comfy chair (refurb an old one with a throw) and treat yourself to a new lamp, which has the power to transform a space - then sit back and snuggle.

DECOR TIP: This season is all about natural materials and textures - wool, mohair and cashmere feel gorgeously snug and improve with age. And don't forget to 'green it up' with house plants, real or faux.

Medium ficus tree
£69, Marks & Spencer

Nomad traveller navy throw
£20, Sainsbury's Home

Wooden side table
£38, Sainsbury's Home

Rose double bed frame in peat broad weave, £995, Button & Sprung, buttonandsprung.com; ink chevron wallpaper, £81 per roll, Barnaby Gates, barnabygates.com

Copper-toned pendant
£30, George Home

Macramé cushion
£18, Sainsbury's Home

Miguel caramel glass table lamp
£49, Dunelm

Copper-toned glass shade
£20, George Home

DREAM UP A BEAUTIFUL BOIDOIR
Warm shades, such as terracotta, burnt orange and mustard yellows, mimic the richness of autumn landscapes and are the perfect, easy-on-the-eye palette for bedrooms. Opt for a pale, neutral backdrop and floor, and darken the mood, for a sleep-inducing atmosphere, by wallpapering the wall behind the bed. Up the style stakes by layering the bed with throws, and accessorise with cushions in harmonising colours. For luscious lustre, add copper lights, vases or photo frames.

DECOR TIP: Adding pops of pattern brings interest to a scheme. Embrace a modern retro-feel with geometric designs, keep it classic with a chevron pattern in monochrome, or keep it simple with a touch of a stripe or spots.

Vauxhall Corsa GSi

VAUXHALL BLAST BACK WITH NEW CORSA GSi

BY CHRIS RUSSON

A BLAST from the past is coming from Vauxhall with the company bringing back the Corsa GSi. It's 25 years since the Corsa wore a GSi badge and the newcomer replaces the recently discontinued VXR model.

More warm than hot hatch, the Corsa GSi is powered by the 1.4-litre turbo petrol engine used elsewhere in the range but fettled to deliver 150bhp with a good amount of torque.

It also sits on the VXR platform and comes with sports suspension and uprated brakes with 17-inch rims standard and 18-inches an option for an extra £510.

And that causes an issue, for on all but the smoothest of road surfaces the Corsa GSi can be unsettled by the slightest bump.

Moreover, with 220Nm of torque going through the front wheels it has inherited a tendency for torque steer when driven enthusiastically.

Together, the ride and the steering can make the Corsa GSi a handful and it would have perhaps benefited had Vauxhall opted for a more compliant set up.

At £18,995 the GSi is the new flagship of the Corsa line up and significantly cheaper than the VXR with a lower insurance rating of group 20.

As such it is the same price as the Suzuki Swift Sport but add in some extras as fitted to the version we tried – such as Recaro sports seats at £1,055, bi-xenon headlights at £425 and a factory fitted sat nav at £650 – and the cost went up to a total of £23,055 which puts it in the same league as Ford's Fiesta ST.

Side by side there's no comparison between the two and the same goes for the Corsa's performance which is rated at 8.9 seconds for the 0 to 60 dash, a top end of 129mph and official fuel economy of 49.6 miles to the gallon with a CO2 figure of 139g/km.

On our run in the car we averaged 37.1mpg according to the trip computer, which for a car of such credentials is acceptable.

On the style front, the Corsa GSi is dressed in a sporty fashion with silver elements in the front trim, carbon effect mirror cappings and carbon on the front grille bar, a rear roof spoiler, red brake callipers and a chrome exhaust tailpipe.

With the larger wheels it looks the part but it's a three-door only and boot space is 280 litres expanding to a maximum of 1,050 litres – the same as the VXR.

Inside, as well as the sports seats there's alloy foot pedals and a flat bottom to the steering wheel to complete the sporty touches and the GSi comes with a seven-inch touch-screen and full smartphone compatibility.

Certainly, the Corsa GSi is more affordable than the VXR but it lacks the bite and while it may look the part it is neither as quick nor as accomplished as most of its rivals.

SEAT Leon Cupra ST 300

PRACTICAL BUT FUN

BY DAVID WARD

SINCE Volkswagen took over SEAT back in 1986, the Spanish car maker has grown by leaps and bounds and really established itself particularly with practical but sporty models to suit all ages and with cars that are a little distinctive from the rest made by the family group.

Obviously now using all the technical know-how of the parent VW group SEAT has still managed to keep its own identity too although there are times when models are almost the same as their German counterparts.

Take the latest Leon ST Cupra 296bhp four-wheel-drive estate car which is a truly practical but fun to drive load-lugger and a real joy for the sporty minded driver behind the wheel.

Ironically it's closest competitor is the VW equivalent - the Golf Estate R TSI with the same 296bhp engine - which is equally as fun to drive with both naturally both models almost clocking in at identical performance times. This means acceleration times of 4.9 seconds for 0 to 62mph, limited top speed of 155mph and an average combined fuel figure of 39.2mpg

Any potential buyer though counting the pennies as we say will opt for the Cupra which comes in at £33,175 in comparison to the Golf R which checks in at £34,955, although both offer many options which of course will push up the prices further yet its down to individuals to choose what extras they want onboard.

This go-faster Cupra, also like the Golf is offered without the huge benefit of four-wheel-drive, will naturally only appeal to certain motorists such as those who want really sports performance driving but still with the practicalities of plenty of luggage space, like 1,470 litres to be precise.

With that excellent four-wheel-drive system on board - it's the usual VW group one with the power coming through the Haldex differentials to all four wheels - along with variable dampers (fitted as standard) makes for excellent road grip particularly in wet and slippery conditions as encountered on this road test.

The Cupra has a six-speed DSG box on board which is silky smooth with quite an effortless up and down gear change that's also quick plus there are different driving modes so the driver can adjust the steering weight and engine characteristics.

Apart from the real fun to drive aspect this Cupra also remains practical from a family point of view with plenty of interior space front and back, ample storage places inside and of course that extremely spacious luggage space at the back.

It's also equally as impressive when trundling in and out of busy town centre traffic although obviously it comes into its own on either long distance journeys or driven more sprightly around twisty country road.

The car's grip is quite amazing and so good is the acceleration that whoever is behind the wheel needs to be conscious of its potential speed out on the open road - as one colleague on board commented that "it could be a licence loser" because it's so quiet and quick.

Sitting on 19-inch alloy wheels the Cupra's interior is well kitted out and again much in the VW vogue although the Spanish backroom team has tried to make it look and feel a bit different from that of the Golf.

It comes with an impressive list of standard equipment such as cruise control, dual zone climate control, autonomous emergency braking, front and rear parking sensors and full-on sat nav with Android Auto/Apple CarPlay, Dab radio, full LED headlights and much more.

For such a sporty estate the ride is really comfortable thanks again to its dynamic chassis control system while the flat-bottomed leather steering wheel is good to use in my view although some motoring colleagues have said they dislike it - why?

Outside the Cupra, as with its hatchback counterparts, looks stylish with its nice, sharp looking body lines and overall distinctive looks and for a sports performance estate doesn't look as leery as some 'hot' hatch and estate cars around.

As for fuel consumption the Cupra surprised on test by returning a creditable 33.3mpg overall but interestingly rose to 39 mpg exactly on two quite long and fast motorway journeys.

It's certainly a driver's car in every sense of the word and for anyone wanting a sensible, sporty performance estate car then it's the one to choose whilst for those not too worried about having permanent four-wheel-drive on board then there are cheaper options with the Cupra range.

As usual it's down to individual choice of taste and of course the family bank balance but anyone opting for the Cupra ST with 4WD certainly won't be disappointed.

AYGO x-press 5 door 1.0 VVT-i Manual. Official Fuel Consumption Figures in mpg (l/100km): Urban 57.6 (4.9), Extra Urban 78.5 (3.6), Combined 68.9 (4.1). CO2 Emissions 93g/km. All mpg and CO2 figures quoted are sourced from official EU regulated laboratory test results. These are provided to allow comparisons between vehicles and may not reflect your actual driving experience. From 1 September 2017, certain new vehicles will be type-approved using the World Harmonised Light Vehicle Test Procedure (WLTP), which is a new, more realistic test procedure for measuring fuel consumption and CO2 emissions. From 1 September 2018 WLTP will fully replace the New European Drive Cycle (NEDC), which is the current test procedure. Due to more realistic test conditions, the fuel consumption and CO2 emissions measured under the WLTP are in many cases higher compared to those measured under the NEDC. More information can be found by visiting www.WLTPfacts.eu

England cricket legend Edwards hands out Colts awards

IT'S NOT often in life you get the opportunity to meet a true ambassador for your favourite sport, however, Harlow Cricket Club's Colts did when former England captain Charlotte Edwards presented them with their annual awards.

Edwards led England on 220 occasions, helping the team to win three Ashes series and leading them to the World Cup/ World

Twenty20 double in 2009.

The first to receive their awards were the club's Jack Petchey winners, followed by those that had achieved their personal milestones – first 50 runs, 100 runs or five wicket haul.

Both Matthew Hart, 15, (five wickets in an adult match) and Zain Munir, 12, (100 runs in a Peter Coe Cup match) also received Lord's Taverners' certificates.

These were followed by the team awards. Despite a mixed season, from U9s to U16s the club's Colts showed many outstanding performances and great team spirit.

This resulted in victory in the U15 County Cup, the U11 League and the U15 Indoor League.

Edwards also presented awards for overall outstanding performances, including at U12 level some additional awards for individual performances.

The overall winners were: under-nines – Jack Fuller; U10s – George and Alfie Jessey (joint winners); U11s – John Conroy; U12s – Joe Radford; U13s – Ronnie Fuller.

The Colt of the Year award was won by Myles Baldock.

Winners of awards were not the only young people to meet Edwards as she spent a considerable time talking and posing for photos.

Phil 'The Power' Taylor with Troy Mead and Dave Hancock

Social club has the 'Power'

HARLOW'S Paringdon Sports & Social Club welcomed a very special guest as 16-time world champion Phil 'The Power' Taylor dropped in for a session to help discover the next generation of players.

He was joined by Daryl Fitton, Target Darts' head of youth development, to promote the manufacturer's #Elite1 system, which aims to give exciting young talents in the sport mentoring and advice from stars like Taylor.

Taylor met with Paringdon Sports & Social Club owners Dave Hancock and Troy Mead to discuss the club's ability to support young talent within the sport, a selection of whom were present to join in the session.

Harlow are no match for leaders Walden

DAMAGE IS DONE IN THE FIRST HALF WITH 20 POINT LEAD BUILT

HARLOW Rugby Club suffered a 20-7 home defeat against unbeaten Saffron Walden in London Two North East on Saturday.

The visitors got off to a great start and hooker Elliott Kelsall opening the scoring as he bundled over the line wide out to put them five points ahead after six mins.

Shortly afterwards Walden regained possession and fly-half Tom Price received the ball 60 metres out.

He jinked past a couple of players to go over the halfway line and kicked through, and with Harlow penalised for a late tackle a simple kick was slotted over to make it an 8-0 lead.

Harlow had some opportunities throughout the half but some great defence kept them at bay and Walden added to their score midway through, with a good catch and drive pushed over the line by No 8 Nik Baker.

Then his brother, second row Brad

Action from Harlow's match against Saffron Walden
MARTINE XERRI

Baker, scored Walden's third try with half an hour on the clock after bursting through the centre to go over under the posts for a converted try.

Despite trailing 20-0, Harlow came out strongly in the opening ten minutes of the second half and scored early on with a well-worked move, breaking through the centre after a perfectly timed pass to narrow the gap to 20-7.

Harlow grew in confidence and it took some determined defence to keep them out, but gradually the dire weather got the better of both teams and handling errors crept in.

The game became disjointed with neither side really looking like scoring despite Harlow's efforts to claw back the deficit and Walden trying to get the bonus point try.

Essex Business Excellence Awards 2018

Congratulations to the worthy winners of this year's awards

The great and the good of Essex's business community packed into the a marquee at Essex County Cricket Ground in Chelmsford for the Essex Business Excellence Awards.

It was the first time the annual celebration has been held at the venue and it certainly did not disappoint.

As well as honouring the best businesses in 12 keenly fought categories, it was a chance for the hundreds of guests to put on their dinner suits and cocktail dresses and soak up the celebratory atmosphere.

The night was organised by brand agency Champions (UK) Plc and hosted by Olympic silver medalist Gail Emms MBE and comedian Mark Dolan. Before the winners were revealed, guests enjoyed a three-course dinner and unique entertainment from Britain's Got Talent star and comedian Kev Orkian.

Simon Edgley, Trinity Mirror managing director for the south east, took to the stage to tell everyone that the awards, now in their seventh year, were going from strength to strength.

He said: "These awards demonstrate the passion, determination, tireless energy and the skill that goes into running a top-performing company and our 12 award categories are designed to celebrate that across a range of sectors. It will be a celebration of the county's best companies and a reminder that Essex is a great place to do business.

"Our thanks also go to our hard-working co-organisers Champions (UK) Plc, whose outstanding support over these last months has allowed us to enjoy this evening."

The annual event is only made possible with the support of the award sponsors.

The headline sponsors for 2018 were Invest Essex and Janine Edwards Wealth Management and the official charity partner was Lord's Taverners.

The sponsors were HSBC, James Hallam, Inspirational London Magazine, Silverstone, 8 Outdoor, Prettys and RSM.
